About the company

Founded in 2005, The Amundsen Group, is a biopharmaceutical strategy and analytics consulting firm focused on helping companies address the challenges brought on by significant industry transformation. Through the application of robust and rigorous quantitative methods, they analyze performance across payer, physician, and patient dimensions to identify opportunities for improved performance. In particular, Amundsen Group consultants bring new insights through a superior understanding of the U.S. reimbursement landscape, deep knowledge of the payers who can influence brand performance, and unparalleled expertise on geographic variations in payer, provider, and patient interactions.
